

Copyright

Download as PDF

All material supplied on the CRSBI website is protected by copyright and other intellectual property rights, and duplication or sale of all or part of any of the material is not permitted, although material may be duplicated for research use or educational purposes in electronic or print form.

The images which you can see on and download from this website are all protected by copyright law. The Corpus of Romanesque Sculpture in Britain and Ireland does not own the copyright in those images and cannot grant licences to use them. The images have been provided by volunteer fieldworkers and various archives, who are the owners of the copyrights. (English law allows the use of copyright material without the consent of the owner for limited purposes including private study and certain educational uses. For more information see <http://www.ipo.gov.uk/>)

The CRSBI wishes to thank picture archives and individuals who kindly gave the CRSBI permission to reproduce their images, in particular the Conway Library of the Courtauld Institute of Art in London and the Church Plans Online, published by the New Opportunities Fund Digitise Architecture England Consortium.